

About the EMA

The Environmental Markets Association (EMA) is an international nonprofit trade association dedicated to promoting market-based trading solutions for environmental management industry professionals.

The EMA has spent the past ten years educating environmental professionals on emissions trading and risk management while creating insightful networking opportunities with industry experts. The EMA also has developed an internet-based seminar series addressing industry hot topics.

Today the EMA's membership consists of more than 200 individuals from over 100 companies worldwide including academics, brokers, consultants, government agencies, non-profit groups, and large utilities.

The EMA is committed to educating individuals in supporting market-based solutions.

Why Should You Become a Member of the EMA?

Education

The EMA is committed to bringing members relevant speakers and topics on emissions marketing through bi-annual conferences, workshops, weekly e-mail updates, and online educational series. EMA hosts two levels in their education series including the Introduction to Emissions Trading and Risk Management. These full day workshops are designed to educate new professionals to the industry while providing a refresher course for seasoned professionals.

Awareness

EMA members receive weekly Tips emails that cover the past week's environmental news makers. The EMA also has created a Web-Based Seminar Series that takes examines industry hot topics that directly affect our members.

Diversity

The strength of the EMA's membership is based on the diverse perspectives and subject expertise in relation to the environmental markets. The EMA's membership includes but is not limited to traders, brokers, utilities, academics, non-profit organizations and government agencies.

Networking

The EMA supports cross-industry communications to enhance the awareness of emerging issues including SO₂, NO_x, REC_s, GHG, and other emissions. The EMA facilitates professional networking among traders, brokers, utilities, government officials and academics.

Discounts

EMA Members receive substantial discounts to EMA-sponsored and co-sponsored events, free viewings of our web-based seminars and member rates to our Emissions Trading and Risk Management workshops. New EMA members receive a substantial discount to their first EMA event.
